Argelia Atilano

Mornings on Recuerdo 102.9 KLOV-FM

An amazingly down to earth personality, with a fun and loving charm is what best describes Argelia Atilano. A Chicago native, Argelia has been with the UNIVISION Radio family since October 2001. She begins every day at 3AM but it's all worth it because she has the opportunity to entertain, inform and provide her audience during their morning commute.

With a double major degree in Journalism and Spanish language Literature, Argelia also has her share of TV experience, first at CBS-TV Channel 2 producing, editing and camera directing. Later she joined KABC-TV as a special projects producer. She has also hosted "Generacion X", a weekly segment dealing with issues facing young adults, "Navegando el Internet", a show instrumental in helping the Latino community become better informed about effectively using the information super highway.

In 2003, Argelia joined the Univision Television Group as an entertainment correspondent for the renown show, "Primer Impacto." As a correspondent she has interviewed some of the world's highest profile actors, producers and directors.

Today Argelia is a well established TV and radio personality, with a work schedule that would surely intimidate most. Yet she still finds time for herself and also to share with her family. She loves to spend time cooking with her mom and sisters, and her spare time is spent at the gym or running outdoors, and catch up on her favorite TV shows. On the weekends it's a passion of hers to dine out with friends or her husband and co-host, Omar Velasco.

Argelia is indubitably a blessed person who loves to share those blessings with her community. She is actively involved with charities like "Padres Contra el Cancer," "St. Jude's Research Center," and "Blind Children's Center."
